

2009–2010 Call for Applications

Application Deadline

October 2, 2009

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars

Purpose

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health & Society Scholars program provides two years of support to postdoctoral scholars at all stages of their careers to build the nation's capacity for research and leadership to address the multiple determinants of population health and contribute to policy change. The program is based on the principle that progress in the field of population health depends upon multidisciplinary collaboration and exchange. Its goal is to improve health by training scholars to:

- investigate the connections among biological, genetic, behavioral, environmental, economic and social determinants of health; and
- develop, evaluate and disseminate knowledge and interventions that integrate and act on these determinants to improve health.

The program is intended to produce leaders who will change the questions asked, the methods employed to analyze problems and the range of solutions to reduce population health disparities and improve the health of all Americans.

Eligibility Criteria

To be eligible, scholars must:

- have completed doctoral training by the time of entry into the program (August or September 2010) in one of a variety of fields including, but not limited to, the behavioral and social sciences, the biological and natural sciences, health professions, public policy, public health, history, demography, environmental sciences, urban planning, engineering and ethics;
- have significant research experience;
- clearly connect their research interests to substantive population health concerns; and
- be citizens or permanent residents of the United States or its territories at the time of application.

Selection Criteria

The following criteria will be considered in evaluating applicants:

- Potential to contribute creatively to the field of population health.
- Demonstrated openness to new ideas.
- Demonstrated critical thinking skills.
- An active interest in interdisciplinary collaboration.
- Commitment to a career consistent with the program's purpose and goals.
- Quality of past research.
- Leadership potential.
- Ability to take advantage of the program's opportunities.
- Recommendations by faculty and other individuals with whom the applicant has studied or worked.

Continued on back

Key Dates and Deadlines

- October 2, 2009
Deadline for receipt of applications.
- Mid to late February 2010
Notification of acceptance.
- August or September 2010
Entry of scholars into the program at participating universities.

Inquiries

Inquiries should be directed to hss@nyam.org.

www.healthandsocietyscholars.org

We encourage all applicants to read the complete details about the program found in the call for applications brochure at www.rwjf.org/cfp/healthandsocietyscholars.

For more information about funding opportunities from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, visit Grants at www.rwjf.org.

Sign up to receive Funding Alerts on upcoming calls for proposals at www.rwjf.org/services.

Total Awards

- Up to 18 scholars will be selected to begin training in August or September 2010 at one of six nationally prominent universities: Columbia University; Harvard University; University of California, San Francisco and Berkeley; University of Michigan; University of Pennsylvania; and University of Wisconsin.
- Scholars will receive an annual stipend of $89,000.

How to Apply

Individuals must apply online through the program's Web site.

Additional information and instructions may be obtained by contacting:

Gerard P. Lebeda, deputy director

Phone: (212) 419-3566

E-mail: hss@nyam.org

www.healthandsocietyscholars.org